Recent scholarship has reopened the question of defining capitalism, from the merchant capitalism of early modern Europe to the colonial networks of nineteenth-century empires to the globalized finance capitalism of recent times. Not just an economic doctrine, the concept of capitalism shaped cultural attitudes, social behavior, legal frameworks, aesthetic sensibilities, and a range of political programs. This course will explore the many dimensions of global capitalism and its impact on world history.

This lecture series is offered by the Center for Global and Area Studies. It may be taken as a one-credit Pass/Fail course: ARSC300 Issues in Global Studies. The course is open to all students and is a core course for the new minors in Global Studies.

Please direct your inquiries to Prof. James Brophy (jbrophy@udel.edu)

WEDNESDAYS 12:20 –1:10 PM 217 Gore Hall

This one-credit course satisfies a core requirement for the Global Studies minor. Visit our website for more information:
www.cas.udel.edu/cgas