Global and Area Studies Grants Program

Call for Proposals 2016

Overview

The Center for Global and Area Studies (CGAS) is pleased to announce the Global and Area Studies Grants program for full-time University of Delaware faculty. This competitive grant program provides awards of up to $5,000 each to support international research. Grant recipients may be asked to present their research results as part of the Issues in Global Studies (ARSC300) public lecture series.

Funds may be used for travel, research costs, and other expenses directly related to the proposed activities. Salary and stipends are not eligible for funding in this grant program. No cost share is required. Faculty teams may apply for a joint award, but the $5,000 grant ceiling still applies. Preference will be given to faculty who have not received awards from CGAS in the last three years, and whose scholarship contributes to the Area Studies programs at UD. The award period runs from May 30, 2016 to May 31, 2017.

The deadline for applications is March 11, 2016

Submission Requirements

Proposals must include:

1. A two-page narrative explaining the significance of the project, potential contributions to the field, and relevance to Area Studies.

2. A budget page and justification for the line items. Include other funding secured or requested for this project.

3. A detailed timeline of the project

4. A brief curriculum vitae

Deadline: March 11, 2016.

Reporting Guidelines

By accepting funds from the CGAS Faculty Research Grant Program, awardees agree to:

1. Submit a final report within ninety days of the end of the funding period, no later than September 1, 2017.

2. Participate in the Issues in Global Studies (ARSC300) public lecture series by presenting their research results. If topic is not relevant to the ARSC300 theme, awardees may be asked to present a public lecture in another venue.
Send your applications via email to Lisa Schulz (lschulz@udel.edu). A CGAS faculty committee will review the proposals and make recommendations. Questions should be addressed to Cynthia Schmidt-Cruz (csc@udel.edu), Interim Director of CGAS.

Grants recipients will be notified by April 11, 2016.
